The Santa Fe County Clerk's Office Kicks Off its High School Outreach Program, #Democracy101 Santa Fe County Clerk Katharine Clark has started an outreach program, #Democracy101, to teach high school students how the voting process works in New Mexico. The program consists of voter registration, presentations about voting and the importance of civic engagement, and a mock election to familiarize young students with the voting tabulators. Students will take turns filling out ballots that ask a few non-political questions and cast them into the tabulator, then print the results, and the Clerk's office staff will present those results to the students. One of the most important goals of the mock election is to dispel misinformation about how the voting machines work. Clerk's office staff will also take the opportunity to recruit student poll workers, who can serve at the polls as young as 16. The first events will take place in September at the New Mexico School for the Arts, Pojoaque Valley High School, and Early College Opportunities High School. The Clerk's office plans to continue coordinating these events.
